Chris explained to me the issue this email is addressing. What I have found is the JavaScript file David Yarnell is suggesting does not link to "yoshidsunderground.mp3", but the JavaScript file music.js does. As a very quick solution to silence the music on Recycle City Challenge, I have commented out the html on the web page pointing to 'music.js' which will prevent the page from playing the music.

It will require at least one web page refresh for the 'no music' version to be active in a user's web browser. All web browsers that have visited the page will have the 'no music' version load at some point in the relatively near future but will continue to play the music until the new page is downloaded.

I will delete the MP3 from the live server momentarily.

Bill,

I will just need to modify the rcg.js file in the js folder of the Recycle City application to stop the music from playing. I would also suggest removing the music file yoshidsunderground.mp3 from the music folder.

If can get the rcg.js file I can have it back to you very quickly so as to not play any backbground music.

David
